History & Nature

In the early 1900s the islands were accessible only by boat. It was said that only lovers made the effort to get to this romantic island – thus the name Lovers Key. A road to the island was built in 1965. Local legend hints that Black Island got its name from Black Augustus, a pirate who had been captured by authorities, and later escaped, making this island his home for the remainder of his life.

Fish camps were located on Black Island from the early 1900s until the late 1950s. Then, in the 1960s and 1970s, the four barrier islands were slated for development. Preparations for development damaged the islands. Mangrove swamps were altered to uplands by dredging a canal through Black Island. In 1983, the state acquired the islands and in 1996, merged with adjacent Carl E. Johnson County Park to become Lovers Key Carl E. Johnson State Park.

This 1,616-acre park between Fort Myers and Naples is comprised of four barrier islands—Lovers Key, Inner Key, Black Island and Long Key. The park offers 2.5 miles of white sandy beaches on the Gulf of Mexico and a variety of recreational opportunities including wildlife viewing, fishing, kayaking and swimming.

Swim, sunbathe and experience some of the best shelling on southwest Florida’s gulf beaches. Hike or bike on 4.5 miles of island trails including the 2.5 mile Black Island Trail that follows the inner waterways of the island. Kayaking and canoeing in the 920 acres of waterways fed by the gulf and bay are favorite pastimes at the park. A boat ramp located on the bay side of the park allows access to Estero Bay and the Gulf of Mexico, and a canoe launch is located within the park. Enjoy saltwater fishing where catches of snook, redfish, trout and tarpon are common—or try castnetting for mullet. Saltwater fishing licenses are required for all visitors. Ranger programs such as guided walks, beginning birding and more are offered year-round. Registration required for programs.

The concession offers food and drinks, bicycles, stand up paddle boards, canoe and kayak rentals, bait and fishing supplies, as well as boat and guided tours. A tram service is available to the south beach where a gazebo, restroom and picnic area are located. The gazebo on the south beach, where weddings and family gatherings are common, may be reserved year-round. Contact the park for details and prices.
