

History & Nature

Native Americans of the St. Johns and earlier cultures traveled and fished what is now known as the Harris Chain of Lakes for thousands of years before settlers appeared in the mid 1800s. The land that is now the park was used for farming and citrus through the 1930s until the state purchased 383 acres in 1946. In 1961, after the state bought additional upland properties and the City of Fruitland Park donated four acres, work began on a campground and boat ramp. Opening in 1968, the park continues to be a popular boating and camping destination. The park's oldest inhabitant is the mammoth Live Oak which stands near the park entrance. The tree is documented as Florida's second largest and is most likely more than 250 years old. The park's featured attraction is the Dead River Marsh, which connects the boat dock to Lake Griffin.

The Dead River Marsh is a bountiful environment that is home to snowy egrets, limpkins, anhingas, herons and hawks. Purple gallinules, coots and kingfishers share the marsh with alligators, otters, rabbits, raccoons, and turkeys. Largemouth bass, bluegill, speckled perch (crappie) and catfish are abundant within the park.

Real Fun in ...the Real Florida<sup>SM</sup>

Welcome to Lake Griffin State Park. Whether you're admiring the mammoth Live Oak at the park's entrance, watching squirrels scamper in the picnic area or glimpsing a great blue heron at the dock, you can relax and enjoy a shady respite from the busy working world here.

A boat ramp and dock are located at the head of a 1,000-foot canal leading to Dead River, which empties into Lake Griffin after approximately one mile. All water within the park is designated an Outstanding Florida Water. Canoe and kayak rentals are available in the park. The canal, marsh and lake offer a beautiful place to observe wildlife. Fishing for largemouth bass, bluegill and speckled perch ("crappie") are plentiful for anglers. A large picnic area with tables and grills is nestled among large live oaks near the parking area. This area is accessible to all visitors. A picnic shelter is available for rent. A playground is located in the picnic area.

A one-half mile long nature trail traverses a portion of the basin swamp and leads the user to the Mammoth Live Oak tree near the park entrance.

The park has 40 campsites, including seven pull-through sites. All sites have water and electricity, ten have 50-amp electric service, and seven have sewer hook-ups. Showers, restrooms and laundry facilities are in the center of the campground. All facilities are accessible to all visitors.
