

Nature & History

For millennia, Manatee Springs and the surrounding area have provided a home site and livelihood for humans. Artifacts found in the spring and adjacent areas indicate that people have been living and raising their families here for at least 9,000 years. The arrival of Spaniards during the 1500s brought an end to a series of cultures that lived in harmony with the earth for thousands of years.

In 1774, William Bartram, a naturalist, botanist and artist, traveled through the area while exploring the Southeast. Later, he wrote a book about his travels, in which he described Manatee Springs in detail and noted the presence of manatees.

Between 35 and 150 million gallons of crystal clear water flow from this first magnitude spring every day. The water percolates through limerock to underground caves that feed the spring. This aquatic cave system is one of the longest in North America and harbors rare species of crayfish.

The spring water flows through the quarter-mile long spring run to join the tannin-stained waters of the Suwannee River en route to the Gulf of Mexico. This brings fresh water to Suwannee Sound, an estuary about twenty-five miles down river.

Water and fire are the two greatest influences shaping the ecology of this park. Water-loving trees grow in the swamps and bottomland forests surrounding the spring and bordering the Suwannee River and spring run. Upland areas of the park host drier habitats such as sandhill communities and upland pine forests. Here, fire is a naturally occurring event that these habitats depend upon for their survival. To assist in restoring and maintaining these natural communities, the park conducts prescribed burns.

Manatee Springs State Park is home to one of Florida's largest freshwater springs. A popular summer recreation site, Manatee Springs is an important winter refuge for West Indian manatees. From November through April, these gentle giants are regular visitors to the spring and a favorite attraction for park visitors.

The north end trail system has 8.5 miles of trails for walking or bicycling.

The spring is ideal for swimming and SCUBA diving, especially during the warm weather months. The spring run and Suwannee River are well suited for canoeing or kayaking. Rental canoes are available at the park concession, which is open seasonally.

Boat ramps are located just outside the park. Anglers find the Suwannee River a fine place for reeling in bass, a variety of sunfish species and catfish. A Florida freshwater fishing license may be required.

The park's 78 campsites are equipped with picnic tables, grills, water and electricity. A campground for non-profit youth groups is available for tent camping. (Some restrictions and fees apply, contact the park for information.) Pavilions located in the picnic area may be reserved for group gatherings.

Seasonal interpretive programs and activities are offered on a variety of topics.
